

Angel Chaisson

Angel Chaisson's distinguished career as an educator is a testament to the energy, passion and dedication she brings to everything she does. She has been appointed as Vice Chair of the State Curriculum & Instruction Committee as well as received her Chair certification training to be appointed as a Chair on the SACS CASI Quality Review Team. She is dynamic!

With over eleven years of experience and her extensive travels from New Orleans, Louisiana where she was born, raised and received her undergraduate degree to Indiana where she attended law school, to Florida where she received many of her graduate degrees, to Texas and now back to beautiful, sunny Florida, Angel Chaisson's experience has been one of invaluable diversity - from a high school English teacher to one of the first English Instructors at the College Academy @ BCC; from a college volleyball coach to an adjunct English / Teacher Education professor; from an educational consultant to a district level administrator; from a curriculum developer to currently serving as a school site-level administrator.

While academics and curriculum development is high on Ms. Chaisson's priority list, sports and extra curricular activities are definitely a major part of her life. She not only served as a volleyball and tennis coach on the secondary and college levels but she was also named the most valuable player in volleyball and served as a member on the all star team during her high school years. She later joined the "LSU Tigers" where she served as the president of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Incorporated and also received her Bachelor's Degree in Criminal Justice with a minor in English.

Eager to enter Law School, which she did, and later wishing to become a Magistrate Judge (never happened) she moved to Indiana, on scholarship, in the coldest winter ever. After many cold days and many long hours of studying she realized that law school was not at all what she had a passion or calling to do but; instead, It was just the thing to do because it was expected of her. She switched her major to Education and decided to follow her true passion and calling to be an educator.

Angel Chaisson moved to Florida and received a Masters of Science in English, a Masters and Specialist in Education, with a focus on Educational Leadership from Nova Southeastern University. In addition, she has completed all the coursework for her doctorate degree in Curriculum and Instruction.
